EASTERN MARKET AIMS TO IMPROVES ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY THROUGH RESUABLE BAG INITIATIVE

Pilot program enlists market vendors and customers with goal to reduce single-use bag waste by 50 percent by 2021

DETROIT – August 13, 2019 – Eastern Market Partnership (EMP) is taking action to reduce single-use bags at the public market. To do this, EMP is launching a pilot reusable bag program in the market by distributing sample reusable bags, in a variety of styles, materials and function, to market customers who agree to be part of a survey and provide feedback. The bags will be distributed at several locations in the market on Sat., August 17, Sun., August 18 and Tues., August 20.

The specific single-use bag reduction initiative began with the vendor operations workgroup to get their input and support and is now turning to customers to garner their input and cooperation. EMP’s goal is to reduce current waste by 50 percent by 2021.

EMP will run the pilot program for four weeks to allow the customers ample opportunity to use and assess the bags, and, when the pilot concludes, complete a survey on their findings and experience. EMP will collect data and produce the preferred reusable bag in large quantities that will be available for a nominal price at the market. This program is supported by a grant from the Erb Foundation.

“The objective of this initiative is to continue diverting market waste from landfills, particularly by reducing market use of nearly 2 million plastic bags per year,” said EMP president Dan Carmody. “Over the past three years we have diverted 25 percent of our waste stream by recycling cardboard. Given the global hesitance to take and process additional plastic waste, it is our urgent responsibility to work with the market community towards the eventual elimination of single-use disposable bags.”

EMP has been developing and refining steps it can take to reduce waste streams and improve the environmental sustainability in the market including recycling cardboard, evaluating composting options and by reviewing best practices of a variety of markets in the U.S. and globally that have virtually eliminated waste streams.

In addition to the test program, there will be signage throughout the market encouraging all customers to participate by bringing their own reusable bags and offer their suggestions to EMP through its social media channels.
